THE DEER LEAP

OUR QUEST

We know not where this river leads,
We know not what fate will be our sea;
And yet o'er rocks, through storms and strife,
Undaunted we'll make our journey through this life.

We, like the ripples of a brook, so untroubled
and so free,
Rise to flow as rapids in a mighty stream;
Swelling like a river swollen high in spring;
No rocks shall hold us back — to the visions of our goals we'll cling.

Our course, as yet unmapped and undefined,
May lead us far away;
But here on these banks to us so dear
Our memories and hearts will stay.
Life, as these waters, rushing ever onward,
Will not slow down, nor cease;
While youth still seeks with every deed and word
To create, and preserve a world of peace.

Class Song + Poem

CLASS SONG
By Ethel Thayer

Smile the while we bid you fond adieu
As the years roll by we'll think of you,
Recall the fun we've had here,
The many things we've held so dear.
Memories of Bristol High will seem
Like the happy fantasy of dreams
As we struggle on down life's way,
Wishing we could stay.
But we see a light in the future
Beckoning us onward toward that goal
For which we have worked so hard.
And so we leave old B. H. S.
Teachers, classmates, friends, and all the rest
Who have helped us to attain success.
Farewell, for
"Tonight we anchor; tomorrow we sail."

TONIGHT WE ANCHOR; TOMORROW WE SAIL
By Bernicia Butterfield

From mountain and valley we came,
Confident, with courage
And strength from the everlasting hills,
Success always our aim.

Day is done and success is ours
After times of gaiety
And years of vigorous toil.
Now all seems such fleeting hours.

We have travelled far o'er restless seas,
The waters rough
And the winds high and strong.
Now we look to the future, holding in our hands
the keys.

No matter what comes, success shall prevail
Though the shore be rocky
And yet far distant from our grasp.
Tonight we anchor; tomorrow we sail.

Class History

By Barbara Flagg, Patty Whitcomb, Harold Trombley.

NAME OF SHIP: Good Ship '51

DESTINATION: Port of Graduation

DATE OF DEPARTURE: September 4, 1945

DATE OF ARRIVAL: June 12, 1951

CARGO: Learning

On the morning of September 4, 1945 a goodly number of crew members, with six years of experience behind them, boarded the Good Ship '51 to begin the long journey to the Port of Graduation. Mrs. Beatrice Hall, our stern commander, administered the twenty daily lashes of education with a firm hand. However, no one of us seemed to suffer from this, as no deep scars remain.

The first part of our course was charted through the Channel of Junior High School. There were many new and strange sights along the way, but of course, our time was spent in studying and adjusting ourselves to the new routine. We had to reckon with such things as having no recesses, going to study hall, and worst of all--Homework!

In January we ran into rough waters--exams! As is often the case, a lot of the crew got violently sea-sick, but most of us managed to pull through.

Life at sea gets a little monotonous, and about this time some of the "sailors" threw a few wild parties. At least we thought they were wild, because it was at one of these that we learned how to play post-office. There was never a dull moment, or a lack of mail, after that!

Before we realized it the first lap of our journey was over. We put the ship into dry dock for repairs, and all tramped off to put our feet on solid ground once more. But, as all true sailors know, it's hard to stay away from water for so long, so we went out to Sherwin's Camp on Lake Champlain for our annual picnic. The braver members of the crew went swimming--"Not cold at all"--said they, as their teeth fell from their frozen lips.

DATE: September, 1946

With the '51 freshly painted we were again on our way. This time we climbed the gang-plank with confidence and ease. We were old timers, now. Mrs. Eleanor Bourget took over command. Poor woman. There was many a time she felt like jumping into the briny deep.

In October we were scheduled to entertain at an assemblage of other ships. We pulled into port, but alas, we found the sea air had ruined our voices. We solved this by putting on a pantomime play. This event is to be remembered for the fact that it was the only time we ever kept quiet.

The sea was very calm through the rest of the channel. The crew spent their leisure time in various ways, which we won't go into. The ship was able to move along at a good rate of speed, and soon we were almost through the Channel of Junior High School. The cry: "All hands on deck" was heard, and around the next turn was the Sea of High School.

When we started out on this, the longest and hardest part of our journey, we felt we might need to have more manpower, so we made several stops and dragged thirteen new men (and women) aboard ship. Our first stop was at the remote port of Lincoln. It was there that we rescued Stan Byington, Bill Steadman, Bernicia Butterfield, Eleanor Farr, Fred Thompson, and Allan Noble from the Indians. We barely escaped being scalped, but that didn't daunt us, and we ventured into the wilds of Starksboro, where we found Lois Hanson, Norma Tobin, and Beverly Jennings. All of these people, plus Mariam Farr, Jimmy Nelson and Jack Abbott, proved to be loyal shipmates and hard workers.

However, we soon learned that ours would not always be smooth sailing. Our first major conflict was with the Pirate Ship '48 which was always lurking about, ready to attack. The battle lasted three days with the Good Ship '51 victorious. With tears of joy streaming down our cheeks, we tore our onion necklaces from our necks and shouted triumphantly, "We're in!"

For our picnic this year we stopped off at Bayside. We enjoyed ourselves, and even with our sea legs, managed to do some roller skating.

DATE: September, 1948

At the beginning of this year we were returning from a trip South. It was there we picked up Grant Bush from the coal mines, down deep in the West Virginia hills. To prove that we Yankees hold nothing against Southerners, we entrusted him with our treasury--which wasn't too large.

We found a couple of shipwrecked people--Fran Ann Jeffers and George Pierson, and brought them along for the rest of the cruise.

In June we sailed across Lake Champlain to brave the river at Ausable Chasm.

DATE: September, 1949

With Mrs. Georgia Jimmo in command of our ship we began our Junior year by acquiring three new crew members: Margaret Cambridge, Eleanor Wyman and Ollie Smalley.

Midway out to sea was heard the cry, "Man Overboard!" Paul Sherwin, who had been with us since our first voyage, was discovered to have fallen overboard. We thought at first he was a goner, but found out later that he had been picked up by the Tramp Steamer '52.

Together with the Good Ship '50 we gave a Minstrel Show which was very successful and added considerably to our treasury.

In the spring we pulled into port and were all granted shore leaves to prepare for our Junior Prom, which proved to be the best one ever given in the history of B. H. S.

After the Prom we sailed along to Lake Dunmore where we spent a day of restful (?) relaxation. This turned out to be a sad day for the crew members of the "'51". We had forgotten our suntan oil and for several weeks afterwards we all carried around permanent blushes.

DATE: September, 1950

Along with Commander Jimmo, Captain Grant Bush was placed in charge of our ship as we began our final voyage. He was ably assisted by First-Mate Patty Whitcomb, Navigator Joan Rulison, and Purser Harold Trombley.

A few days at sea we noticed a little ship marked "'54" floundering around on the rough waters. After we duly rescued them, they proved to be very ungrateful and in dire need of discipline. This we administered to them in the form of an initiation, after which we tossed them back into the sea--sink or swim.

This year the ship rocked somewhat, due to exams, which we hadn't had since the eighth grade. Again all members of the crew proved to be able seamen and our craft weathered the storm.

Clear the decks for "The Life of Riley". Our Senior Play, the first in several years, was such a hit that a repeat performance was given. This success added a great deal to our treasury.

FINAL DESTINATION: Port of Graduation.

On June 12, 1951 our ship docked for the last time. Honorable discharge for the thirty-one members of our crew; each to launch forth on a new career and to attempt to "pour oil" on the troubled waters of this world.

Class Will

By Phil Gardner, Fran Ann Jeffers and Eleanor Wyman

As we are about to embark upon a journey into the unknown, the crew and passengers of the Good Ship '51 do hereby, swearing themselves sound in body, and possibly in mind, make their last will and testament in the Port of Bristol, County of Addison, State of Vermont, Country of the United States of America, this June 12th, Year of Our Lord 1951. Grant Bush wills his Emily Post Book of Manners to the Junior Class in general and Lawrence Orvis in particular.

Bernicia Butterfield-her quiet and concise manner to Walter Freeman.
Stanley Byington-his ability to get along with Miss Furkey to Darwin K.
Margaret Cambridge-her grotesque imagination to Norma Purinton.
Constance Cox-Her "ring-a-lets" to Colleen LaFrance.
Peggy Derby-her stature to Gilbert Partch.
Nancy Estey-her New Haven interests to Mary Wisell.
Eleanor Farr-her gliding walk to Gerald Scribner.
Mariam Farr-her interest in Mercurys to Lorraine Lathrop.
Barbara Flagg-her book on calories to Cora Hubbell.
Phil Gardner-his other collarbone in one piece to Frankie Hier.
Lois Hanson-her interest in tenors to Barbara Baslow.
Beatrice Hoag-the car to Charlie and Walter with her driver's manual.
Fran Ann Jeffers-her "red" hair to T. Prime.
Alfred Jenkins-his Charles Atlas build to Dan Steadman.
Beverly Johnson-her flowing personality to Paul in memory of the first grade.
Craig Kirby-the front seat of a certain car to Bill Paine.
Jimmy Nelson-his driving ambition to Jack Leonard.
Allan Noble-his chicken pox to Donny Bedard.
Mary Peet-her dark and roving eye to "Fuzz" Desorda.
Virginia Pierce-her math ability to Ina Mae Beesaw.
Joan Rulison-the black coupe to Peanut Carl.
Ollie Smalley-her cheerful ways to Caroline Wheeler.
Bill Steadman-his watchdog determination to Pete Bigelow.
Ethel Thayer-her supply of midnight oil to Charlene Craig.
Fred Thompson-his Farr-ming interests to Evie Wyman.
Norma Tobin-her unflustered answers to Tommy McKinnon.
Harold Trombley-his ability to rule out competition to Frank Estey.
Betty Trudeau-her supply of extra pencils to Claude Brassard.
Patty Whitcomb-her Accident Insurance to Paul Sherwin.
Eleanor Wyman-her interest in Fords, past, present and future, to Peanut.
The Senior Class Wills To:
Mr. Moore-a rabbit dog who can find his way home.
Mr. Marshall-a book of sarcastic comments for his 1952 Economics Class.
Mrs. Marshall-a nickname to replace the inappropriate "Butch".
Mr. LeBaron-new jokes to keep his students out of their "glass offices".
Mrs. Jimmo-a French class sans Phillippe Gardner et Jacques Nelson.
Mr. Billard-an arsenal and a suggestion box for his classes.
Miss Furkey-a course in Aggie so she can study plantes
Miss Milne-a music class with music.
Mr. Comstock-a new abridged Macbeth.
Mr. Plante-a Crosley so it won't be so obvious.
Mrs. Whitcomb-a new class room.
Mrs. Jones- a recipe for non-soggy cupcakes.
Mr. Sarchioto-a pair of shoes without mud cleats.

Class Prophecy

By Beverly Johnson, Mary Peet, Craig Kirby

It is 1955 and the crew of the Good Ship '51, having served their "hitch" of four years, has been honorably discharged.

As we come to dock in New York harbor let's scout around and see what civilian life has brought them.

Walking in from the waterfront, we stop in at American Shipping, Inc., where we meet their three most capable secretaries, Lois Hanson, Betty Trudeau and Ollie Smalley, who expect to get the business someday.

Crossing the George Washington Bridge we come to a monument shop beside a small white cottage. Here Jimmy Nelson pounds out tombstones for an honest dollar. We always knew you'd end up in New Jersey, Jimmy.

One of the most important stops on our land trek is to a clothing store. As we settle ourselves in a deep lounge chair, out walks a beautiful model--our own Mariam Farr. "We'll take both the dress and the model, please."

Into the hospital for a brief check-up and a few shots. But with a nurse like Mary Peet who feels any pain? While there, and between yells, we see peppy Barbara Flagg, gliding down the hall behind a wheel chair. Well, what do you know? It's Grant Bush--the Olympics prove to be too much for you, old boy? A laughing group of nurses comes strolling down the corridor from the operating room. Ah, we recognize Nancy Estey, Eleanor Farr, Bernicia Butterfield and Virginia Pierce. It looks like the entire class of '51 chose nursing as a career. Here comes Beverly Johnson, headed for night duty in the next ward. She stops at a flower-filled sunroom to look in on Phil Gardner, who is recovering from another run-in with Frankie Hier.

As we pass the "Met" we hear the strains of a beautiful song. A look inside tells us it's Norma Tobin's lovely soprano voice.

Out to the suburbs for a little fresh air. Look at the nice farms out here. They look like the work of Vermonters. Sure enough, the mail box of one bears the name of Allan Noble. And there's Fred Thompson who's also Farr-ming.

On our way back to the city we pass a small schoolhouse. What is it that holds the pupils' attention so? Why, it's their teacher, Eleanor Wyman. Bet she gets plenty of apples. Stopping in at the public school to refresh our memories we meet Margaret Cambridge, Peggy Derby, and Patty Whitcomb. With teachers like these the students are bound to learn--something.

Continuing our trip back to the city we see two smart looking college boys. They look familiar, and no wonder! It's Craig Kirby and Bill Steadman, both of whom are high on the Dean's List.

A trim business girl walks briskly past us along Fifth Avenue. It's no one else but Ethel Thayer. Someone said she is going to marry her boss.

Look at the sign on that office door: "Connie's Advice to the Lovelorn". They always say experience is the best teacher and Connie has certainly had the experience--giving advice, that is.

Strolling along we see Hal Trombley and Al Jenkins, who are both in the service. They tell us that Fran Ann Jeffers and Beatrice Hoag are in the WAF's. They've made quite a hit with the Air Force, too.

Let's buy a few magazines before we go back to the ship. Here's the Saturday Evening Post. What a beautiful cover by J. A. R. That must be Joan Rulison, our class artist, who's giving Norman Rockwell some real competition. We always knew you'd succeed, Joan.

As we go back on board ship, we are content and happy that our discharged crew members have proven to the world that they received a proper start at B. H. S.

This whistle we present to a nice gal,
And star player, Ginnie by name,
As a coach you'd not only win laurels
But perchance international fame.
To our fair and jolly Betty,

Who a secretary someday will be,
We present this stenographer's notebook
To write in, while on bosses' knee.
A compass for our fellow traveler.

That's Beatrice, who likes a marine,
If again she should go on a visit,
'Twill keep her "all set" and "on beam".
For Mary, the sweet and petite gal,
To help her remember each date,
We present this pencil and memo
So she'll be able to keep them all straight.

A governor we present to you, Jimmy,
So attach to your car right away.
'Twill slow down those trips to New Jersey
And you'll land, all one piece, in ten days!

Here, Phil, a bottle of "O Be Joyful",
Don't let your spirits get low,
But after reviving them, Phil,
Remember----DRIVE SLOW.

To Peggy, the short one of our class,
We leave this little footstool,
So you can climb way up in the world,
Without being anyone's fool.

This Ouija board is for fair Eleanor,
Hours of fun we hope you'll enjoy.
You can plan your future and perhaps--
Tell who is your favorite boy?

Since you won't make your own choice, Alfred,
We've dared to select you a "date".
Better make up your mind in a hurry.

Or you may find you're much too late.
Tall Harold is in need of assistance.

A play, we suggest if we may,
Use this leash, it's fun for keeping Miss Eleanor Near you, and not Farr away.

To Norma, we leave these Dr. Scholl's
In case your shoes get worn with holes.
Those long walks to Starksboro town,
Would sure enough get anyone down.

For Beb, we have this tomahawk,
To remind her of those wild days.
Tell me, are the Indians still around,
Or have they mended their ways?

To Barb, we leave these blinders,
So while you're working at Pete's,
You can still keep your will power--
By not watching others eat.

To Ethel, we give this Tintex dye,
To change that light and roving eye,
To one of even brighter hue--
We know it will get lots of use by you.

A yard of blue ribbon for Nancy. . . .
"Yes, Miss, I think this will do,"

For Nancy has finally settled
On that one and good looking "Hugh".

To Pat, we give this crash helmet,
In case you ever get hit.

Your little Ford wouldn't protect you much
If a tree ran into it.

Here's a car for Freddie from Lincoln,
And we know he won't need a guide

To show him to Farr-away places,
So don't you walk, Freddie,—ride.

An hour glass we bequeath to Bevy.
We want her to do just as we say,

When time begins passing too quickly,
Turn it over—and always be gay.

A walkie-talkie for Margaret Cambridge,
It's shiny, it's tiny, and good lookin'.

So when Mariam's not with you, Margaret,
You can tune in, and find out "what's cookin'".

Here's to Ollie, courageous and cheerful,
A sweetheart with dimples so deep,

To match a complexion so flawless,
We present this peach—to a peach.

To Grant, we give this Vigaro,
You're interested in plants, we know,

It will help, beyond a doubt,
To make your little "bushes" sprout.

To the talented one of our class
We give this mirror of solid glass,
For through it, Joan, we hope you can see
What a wonderful life yours is going to be.

To Mariam, we give this little whisk broom,
'Cause you're always so pretty and neat,

We know it'll come in handy,
And whisk "him" right off his feet.

To Allan, we give this baseball,
Autographed by Dodgers and Yanks,

But when you become a star, Allan,
Don't forget to send Bristol your thanks.

There's but one tiny thing Bill is lacking,
Otherwise, surely, he's tops,

We've chipped in and bought him a Toni,
For those dark but unruly locks.

This compact so sleek and so shining,
We give to our Lois so bonny.

We want her to look smooth and perfect,
For her one and favorite "Johnny".

To Connie, we bequeath, with our compliments,
This renowned Astrology booklet,

You see, she's still in a dither,
As to which one she'll let off the hook—yet!

To Eleanor F., we give this TV set,
So on nights when the snow is so deep

That you TWO can't plow out of Lincoln,
Tune in Vaughn Monroe—he's a treat.

Here's a Packard just perfect for travel,
With sleek lines and nary one dent,

But a license—you've got us all wondering,
Craig, can you get Dad's consent?

To Fran Ann, we bequeath this alarm clock,
So on mornings she'll know when to wake,

We know those late hours are tiring,
But a nine o'clock class she must make!

To Stan, one of those sport fans,
We give this booklet on how
To win---if you can.

Junior Class

According to the polls, Paul Sherwin was called upon for the honorable task of presiding over the Junior Class. John Burbank came in second for the vice-presidency, Jean Morrill drew the secretaryship, and Carroll Morrison was chosen to guard our treasury. Mr. Billard was our class advisor.

In order to obtain the ever-desired evil, money, the Juniors sponsored two dances and a chicken pie supper.

To us fell the Juniors' annual job of the Junior Prom. Although at the time of publishing we haven't begun on it, we want you Seniors to rest assured that we will do our best for you, our honorable guests.

Sophomore Class

The Sophomore Class started the year by electing Ronald De Neve, President; Lorraine Lathrop, Vice President; Marjory Young, Secretary; and Gerald Scribner, Treasurer.

Our class contributed seven members to the varsity basketball teams. Patty Desorda and Marjory Young went to the girls' team, and Walter Freeman, Bill Paine, Arthur Prime, Gerald Scribner, and Robert La Foy, who dropped out later to join the service, went to the boys' team. Lorraine Lathrop was elected to serve as assistant manager of the girls' team.

The Sophomores decided on sponge-throwing and dart-throwing booths, and a bean guess for the School Fair.

The class also ordered class rings this year.

Freshman Class

The Freshman Class started off by electing officers at our first class meeting. Elected President was Frank Estey; Vice-President, Ruth Nelson; Secretary, Ernestine Cloe; Treasurer, Ina Mae Besaw.

Our initiation was celebrated by the boys wearing girls' dresses, stockings, baby bonnets, rattles and lipstick measles. The girls dressed in hip boots, overalls, rain hats, baby bottles, lipstick measles and they carried lanterns.

We have sponsored two record dances, making a fair profit on each.

For our assembly, we presented the sixteen-piece Bristol Band.

Our first year has been very successful, and we hope to keep up this success in our future years.

Seventh Grade

At the first meeting of our class, we elected the following officers: Ralph Prime, President; Gary Scribner, Vice-President; Jerry La Foy, Secretary; and Rosalie Brown, Treasurer. Mrs. Whitcomb was our home room advisor.

In Student Council we were represented by two boys and one girl; Charles Lyons, Fred Smith and Rosalie Brown.

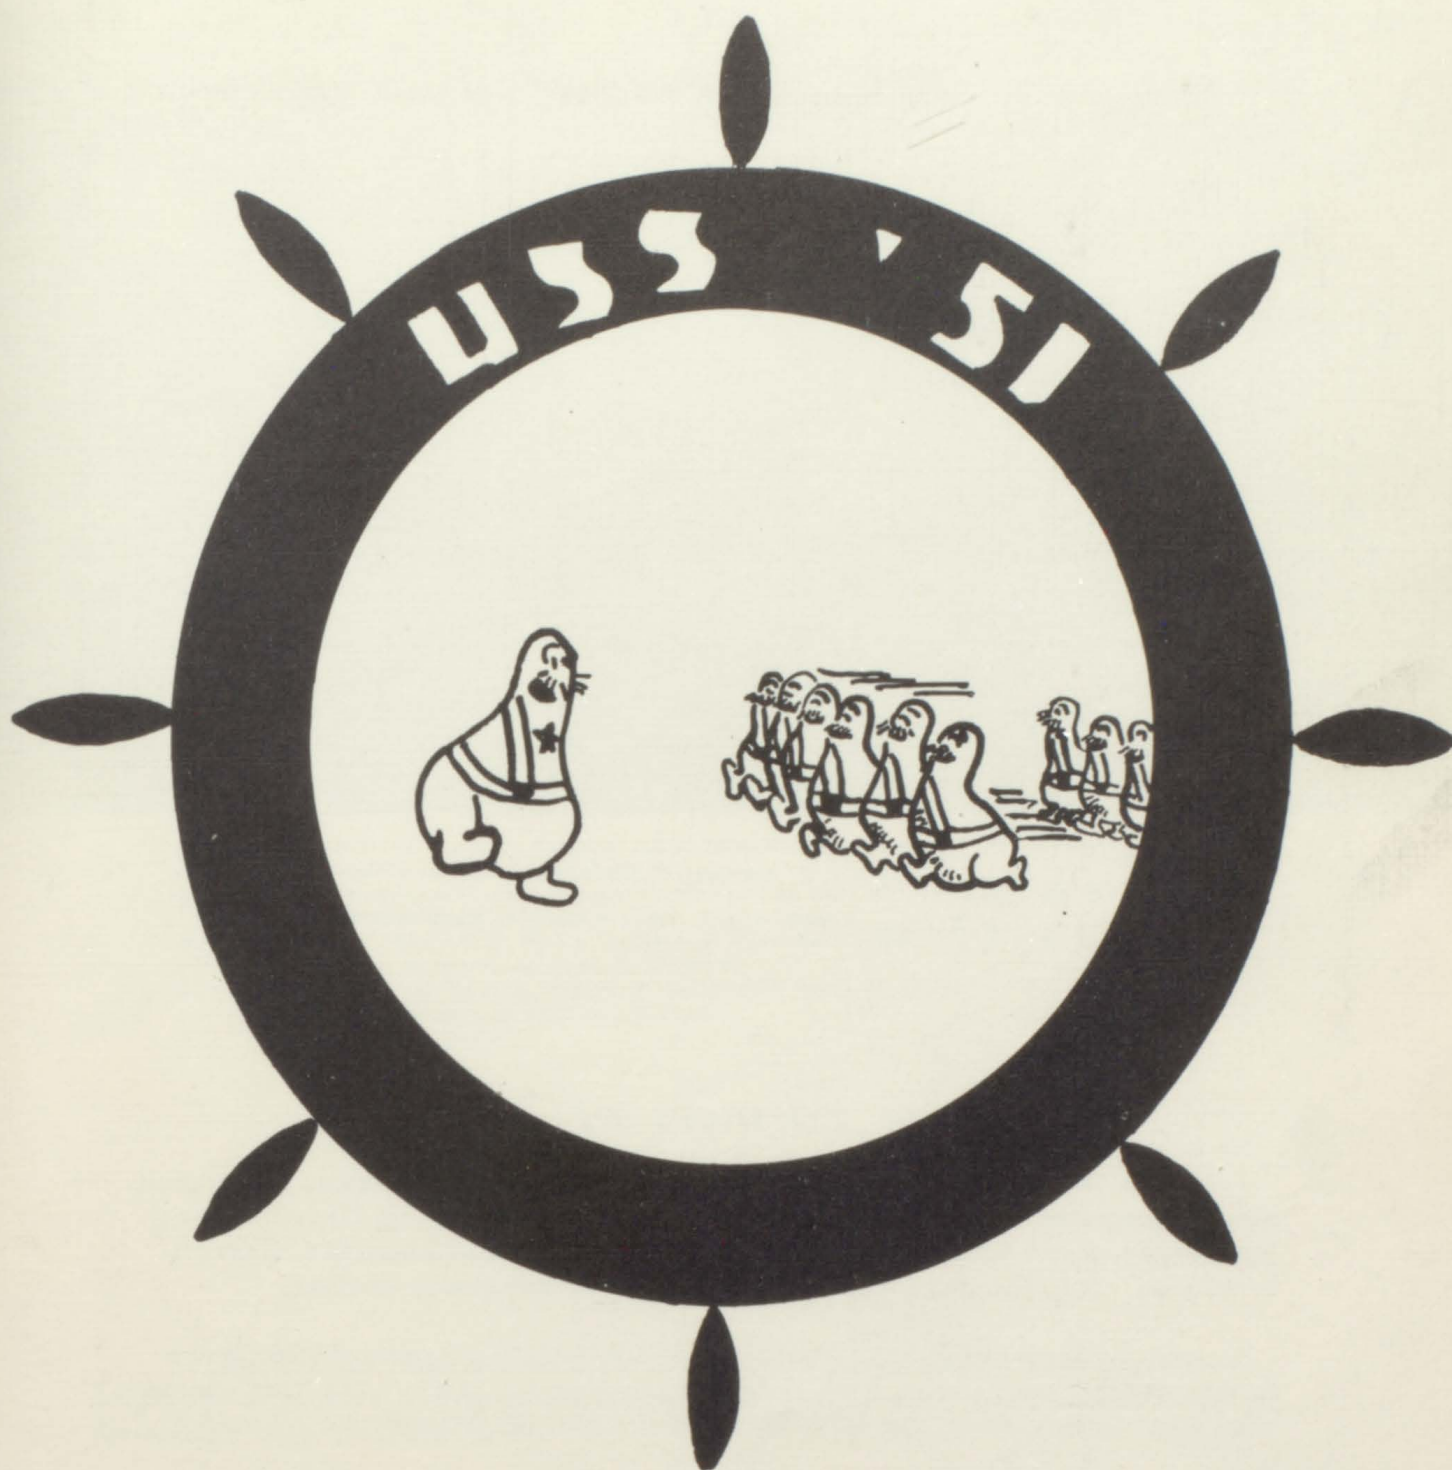

Other activities included a Valentine Party on February 14 in our room, and participation in the School Fair.

Glee Club

The Bristol High School Choir, under the direction of Miss Ruth Milne, began the year by electing as its officers Harold Trombley, President and Barbara Flagg, Secretary.

The first program to be presented by the Choir was the Christmas Concert, given on December 21, in the High School Auditorium. This was enjoyed by those who took part in it as well as those who attended.

Bristol was well represented at the State Music Festival. Cloy Mallow, Sandra Sturgeon, and Bill Paine took part in the All-State Orchestra. Those who sang in the All-State Chorus were Marie Carl, Fran Ann Jeffers, Phil Gardner and John Burbank.

Student Council

With six members of last year's Council returning by re-election, an assembly was held consisting of campaign speeches by those who wished to be elected.

Starting its third year with these twelve new members added, the Council elected Harold Trombley, President; Barbara Flagg, Vice-President; Joan Rulison, Secretary; and John Burbank, Treasurer.

A committee was elected to plan and take charge of the assemblies for the year. These were to be divided among the classes and organizations of the school.

The Student Council sponsored the annual Christmas assembly and party on December 22.

A Clean-up Campaign was instituted in the spring, and the Council had charge of plans for the School Fair.

School Safety Patrol

At the first Patrol meeting several days after the start of the 1951 school year, the following officers were elected: Beatrice Hoag, Captain; 1st Lieutenant and Secretary, Fran Ann Jeffers; and 2nd Lieutenant, Bill Steadman.

Only a few members remained from last year's squad. Thus after a membership drive among the Sophomores and Juniors more members were enlisted, making a grand total of twenty.

The outstanding activity of the year was the Patrol Field Day held in Lyndonville in May.

Girls' Basketball

The B. H. S. girls' basketball team went through another season to be proud of, losing out in top honors of the Champlain Valley League by three close games. The first was to Shelburne, 51-53, at Bristol. The return game ended in a 39-39 tie. The next defeat was to Vergennes by a heartbreaking score of 43-44. This was avenged later at Vergennes by a 52-30 win. Another close loss was to Weeks School, 29-31. The only other defeat was to St. Mary's of St. Albans, after having beaten them earlier in the season on their own floor. The competent playing of Captain Virginia Pierce was missed at guard most of the season after a knee injury, but Ruth Nelson, a Freshman, stepped in and did an excellent job. The other guard positions were capably filled by Seniors Joan Rulison, Frances Ann Jeffers, and Barbara Flagg. The veteran forward line made up of Sandra Sturgeon, Marie Carl and Mary Peet did an admirable job through the season. The playing of Mary Peet and the Senior guards will be greatly missed next season. For reserve strength as forwards we could always count on Patty Desorda, Evelyn Wyman and Barbara Hier and, as guards, Pat Orvis and Marjorie Young. The J. V. team tied one and lost one to Middlebury and lost one to Orwell. Mrs. Dorothea Marshall took over the duties of coach for Mrs. Georgia Jimmo who had led Bristol through many successful seasons.

Boys' Basketball

This year's edition of the Bristol Bombers was highlighted by the large number of boys who played varsity ball and by its initiation as a competitor in Class B basketball. No less than fourteen boys played as members of the varsity team at one time or another during the season. It would be unfair to name five as the first five. Captain Hal Trombley, Al Jenkins, Grant Bush, Stanley Byington, Don Bedard, Frank Hier, Jack Leonard and T. Prime did well as starters and as substitutes. Late in the season Bill Paine, Gil Partch, Charlie Lafley and Gerald Scribner performed ably when the chips were down. The team was weakened considerably early in the season when Robert LaFoy was injured at Brandon and subsequently joined the Air Force. Later the temporary and prolonged absences of such stalwarts as Don Bedard, Jack Leonard, Frank Hier, Al Jenkins and T. Prime from the line-up contributed greatly to the appellation, "jinx". The team did well in splitting wins and losses evenly in twelve games against Class B competition. It placed second in the Champlain Valley League after close losses to Shelburne and Jericho. The good sportsmanship and playing ability of the graduating Seniors: Trombley, Jenkins, Byington and Bush will be difficult to replace another year.
